

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY ATTORNEY FITZGERALD NAMED AMONG “BEST IN ST. LOUIS”

Armstrong Teasdale is proud to announce that St. Louis Intellectual Property partner Dan Fitzgerald has been named among the best IP attorneys in St. Louis by St. Louis Small Business Monthly. The magazine polled its readers and asked them to nominate the best patent and IP attorneys in St. Louis.

Fitzgerald serves as chair of the firm’s electrical and computer science practice area and has developed an extensive intellectual property law practice handling transactions, product development, patent prosecution, litigation strategy and inter partes review strategy. He is registered before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and regularly advises his clients on the strategic aspects associated with enforcing or defending patent rights. Fitzgerald has been involved in a number of patent infringement controversies involving the enforcement of patent rights, the defense of product-producing clients and challenging the validity of patents. Additionally, he manages patent portfolios including thousands of patent and trademark matters in the United States and around the world.

He will be featured in the January 2018 issue of the magazine.
